Pentecostalism (General Works)

- An innovative study of Pentecostal worship rites that shape, nurture, authenticate and transform the spiritual lives of Pentecostal Christians.

- A study of Pentecostalism as a worldwide, particularly non-Western phenomenon. The authors analyze its roots from several global perspectives, including indigenization and contextualization, and identify its current challenges such as the relationship of Spirit-baptism to the supernatural.

- A Skillful analysis of the Pentecostal tradition, tracing its history from reformed holiness roots, outlining its key doctrines, and providing a rare perspective on its early leaders through the twenties. Though Anderson presents from a naturalistic perspective, his research must be viewed by serious Pentecostal students.

- Meticulously explores the turn-of-the-century social and cultural context in which the Pentecostal denomination was born and breaks new ground by demonstrating how strongly restorationists impulses influenced the thinking of first-generation leaders.

- Focuses almost exclusively on Reformed and Keswick influences in the origins of Pentecostalism.

- Uses the Assemblies of God as a lens through which to view the changing nature of Anglo Pentecostalism in the United States. Illustrates how the original mission to proclaim the end resulted in development of Bible schools, the rise of the charismatic movement, and the popularity of such figures as Aimee Semple McPherson, Charles Fox Parham, and David Du Plessis.

- Explores the nature of catechesis, in particular the process of faith formation within Pentecostalism, including a critique of the educational paradigm of Paolo Feire as a means of empowering the oppressed.

- Uses historical research to examine both the development of Spirit theology and the life of the Spirit in the Church together as an interrelated whole.

- Lay Pentecostal beliefs concerning glossolalia and Spirit-baptism gain in coherence when they are understood within the larger Christian spiritual tradition. Pentecostal ecclesiology is thus best understood as ‘traditioning community’.

- First analysis of Matthew’s pneumatology from a Pentecostal perspective. Matthew’s interest in and indebtedness to the Old Testament results in a description of the eschatology of redemption as the direct result of the activity of God’s Spirit.
